Will Our Lord Find Us Faithful?

Rev David Cher, Lord's Day, 08 Nov 2026

Beloved Brethren,
Greetings in the Precious Name of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. We enter this world with empty hands and we will leave it the very same way. Between our first breath and our last, God entrusts much into our care — time, talents, people, and passing opportunities we never earned and could never deserve. All of it comes not because we are worthy, but from His Gracious Hand. Yet how quickly we forget and begin to live as if it all belongs to us.

But the Bible never once calls you an owner. It calls you a steward. An owner looks at what is in his hands and says, "This is mine. I worked for it, I earned it, I deserve it, so I can do whatever I like with it." A steward bows his head and says something very different: "This is not mine at all. It belongs to my Master. It has only been placed in my hands for a little while, and my one duty is to do what He likes with it."

In Jesus' day, a steward was not a hired worker but a trusted servant, often a slave, entrusted with his master's entire estate while he was away — his money, his fields, and his household. He bore great responsibility, yet owned nothing himself, knowing that one day his master would return to settle accounts. As Jesus asked, "Who then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his master will make ruler over his household, to give them their portion of food in due season?" (Luke 12:42).

Beloved, that is where we live today. Our Master has ascended, entrusting all He has into our care, and He has promised to come again. For it is written, "Moreover it is required in stewards that one be found faithful" (1 Corinthians 4:2), and "For everyone to whom much is given, from him much will be required; and to whom much has been committed, of him they will ask the more" (Luke 12:48). So the question remains for each of us: when our Master returns, will He find us faithful?

This is where we struggle. When others are watching, faithfulness feels easier. But most of our lives are lived in ordinary, unseen moments — how we spend our money, how we use our time, how we treat those God has placed around us. And that is precisely where our stewardship is revealed. Nothing is hidden from the Lord, for "the eyes of the Lord are in every place" (Proverbs 15:3). He does not watch to catch us out, but to see whether we live as owners holding tightly to what is ours, or as stewards faithfully caring for what is still His.

And living as owners is surely a weary and burdensome way to live. If all that I have is mine, then all that I have depends on me. I must guard, grow and prove myself by it. But when I remember it was never mine to begin with, the burden lifts. As David prayed, "For all things come from You, and of Your own we have given You" (1 Chronicles 29:14). My time was never mine to waste, but neither was it mine to control. My gifts were not given for boasting, but for serving — "as good stewards of the manifold grace of God" (1 Peter 4:10).

What God looks for is not greatness, but faithfulness — the quiet steward who keeps the house in order and does his master's will. "Blessed is that servant whom his master will find so doing when he comes" (Luke 12:43). For "we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ" (2 Corinthians 5:10), and may we then hear, "Well done, good and faithful servant" (Matthew 25:21).

God Bless!
